League clubs united for anti-racism drive

Football League clubs are once again helping to unite people against racism.

The Kick It Out week of action under the One Game, One Community initiative, has just started and Oldham Athletic have made a prison visit as their contribution to the activities.

Goalkeeper Mark Crossley went along to HMP Buckley Hall with Oldham director Alan Hardy and the club's Football League In The Community boss James Mwale.

The club are convinced they can help inmates get back on track regardless of their background and colour.

Mwale said: "It was a great success. The inmates we visited were from different cultures and ethnicities. We thought the visit would be the ideal way to get the Kick It Out week underway.

"I was able to explain different roles within the club to them, and they were able to put their questions to Mark about life as a footballer.

"There is no better way than football for people to motivate themselves to better things. And they understood that there is certainly no room for racism in football."

Southend are running Saturday morning sessions so youngsters of different nationalities and race can get together.

Organiser Steve Goodsell said: "We have had children from Slovakia, Romania, Poland, Bangladesh, Africa, Greece and England interacting. It has been great."

West Brom keeper Dean

Kiely said: "This is a permanent fixture in the football calendar and quite rightly hammers home the message each year that there is zero tolerance for racism within our game."

A host of top sportsmen including boxer Amir Khan, England cricketer Monty Panesar and Arsenal's Theo Walcott, along with top chef Gordon Ramsay who played for Glasgow Rangers, are all supporting KIO week which runs until October 30.

Arsenal star Walcott said: "I hope people across the country get involved in the week of action - it's a great campaign."

Over 1,000 events will take place to celebrate the contribution all communities make to the game, while training and awareness lessons, educational activities and match day entertainment will form part of the initiative.

Casper trophy corker

Bury have hit the Johnstone's Paint Trophy jackpot by drawing Leeds United away in the regional quarter-finals.

The Elland Road club are currently unbeaten in Coca-Cola League 1 and have been attracting average gates of more than 25,000.

Bury are mid-table in League 2, and 1,690 watched their last home match against Lincoln.

Shakers boss Chris Casper said: "We will go to Elland Road in confident mood.

"Leeds are a big club and a great club, and it will be good to go there and play.

"We haven't been to Leeds for 40 years."

Elsewhere in the Northern Section of the draw, Morecambe are away to Hartlepool, while Grimsby host the winners of the Doncaster v Oldham tie, which was postponed until Tuesday.

In the Southern Section League new-boys Dagenham & Redbridge, who won at Southend and Leyton Orient in the previous rounds, were handed a trip to another League 1 club when they drawn against Gillingham.

PRISON BREAK FOR OLDHAM: Latics keeper Mark Crossley helps Kick Racism Out Of Football at HMP Buckley Hall

Anwar: Football is winning

Football is already winning the war against racism.

Dagenham & Redbridge defender Anwar Uddin, who is of Bangladeshi descent, says he has noticed a change of attitude within the game since the start of his career.

Uddin, 25, is a full Bangladesh International and is also the first British Asian to captain a Football League club.

He is an active supporter of the Kick It Out campaign.

He said: "I have definitely noticed that racism within the game has become less of a problem, particularly in the past five years, and that is due to projects such as One Club, One Community and things like it.

"Football reflects society so it is difficult to completely eradicate racism. But all the time that we are raising awareness it is beneficial."

Kieron puts his cash into youth game

By PAUL JIGGINS

Footballers can sometimes stand accused of giving nothing back to the game that has provided them with fame and fortune.

You cannot level that kind of criticism at Kieron Dyer.

The West Ham and England star has given great support to Ipswich - the club where he started his career.

The former Town favourite took the novel step of sponsoring the club's Under-18 match with Arsenal, so that young fans could see the game for free.

Dyer, currently sidelined for the Hammers as he recovers from a double broken leg, came through the youth set-up at Portman Road and went on to make 100 appearances for the Tractor Boys before joining Newcastle in a £6.5million transfer in 1999.

He said: "I'm in a situation now where I can help out.

"I would not be an England international if it were not for Ipswich Town so it is good to be able to give something back."

Dyer also covered the overheads at Portman Road in order for the players to get a taste of how it feels to play in a stadium.

He added: "I remember when I was a youth player and on Saturday mornings we didn't play in the stadium. But when it came to the FA Youth Cup we did, and there were always good crowds. So that geared you up for when you got in to the first team."

Profits from adult ticket sales are being fed directly into the club's Academy.

Academy sponsorship manager Simon Milton said: "It was a great gesture by Kieron. He said he was keen to help out the Academy in some way, so we came up with this idea."

GENEROUS: Dyer is helping former club Ipswich Town

Scunny side up on telly

The Championship bursts back on to our screens this weekend with a triple bill after the break for internationals.

Nigel Adkins' Scunthorpe have fitted in nicely to the division since promotion, and host Leicester in the first televised game on Sky Sports 1 at 5.20pm on Saturday.

A trip to the south coast for Cardiff follows on Sunday as the Bluebirds take on Southampton in a 1.15pm kick off also on Sky Sports 1.

Both sides are eager to prove they are promotion candidates, and Saints striker Stern John will be looking to build after scoring his first Championship goals of the season last time out.

Hull take on Barnsley in Monday night football, as Simon Davey's Tykes aim to continue a six match unbeaten run in another Sky Sports 1 show. Kick off 7.45pm.

Matt Smith will be on hand on Sunday morning from 10.20am as ITV's The Championship show airs all the weekend's highlights.

Bazza is back at Bees!

Barry Fry is returning to Barnet for one night only.

He is a special guest at Underhill to celebrate the club's Centenary at a dinner in the stadium's Durham Suite on November 24.

Fry led the Bees into The Football League for the first time in 1991, and will always be hero-worshipped by Barnet supporters for that alone.

He spent 14 years with the club before leaving in 1993, and has since been in charge at Birmingham and Peterborough.

Tickets are priced at £40 from the Barnet Supporters Association.

Trust us! Town launch new community work

ROBINS: Lots to celebrate

Gone are the days when a football club just opened its doors to supporters every other Saturday afternoon and for the occasional midweek night.

Football League clubs, like Cheltenham, are now at the centre of their surrounding communities.

The Coca-Cola League 1 Robins have launched a charity initiative to help tens of thousands of local people.

The Trust has been set up to reinforce the club's links with the local community, using the power and profile of professional football as a vehicle to help deliver activities in the region.

The new charity will develop partnerships with local organisations such as councils, the police and health trusts to deliver programmes and activities benefiting up to 100,000 people a year.

FA Director of Football Development Sir Trevor Brooking was invited to Whaddon Road for the launch.

He said: "When I was growing up we would come home from school and play football for three hours because there was nothing else to do.

"Those days are gone. There are many competing attractions for children so it is becoming more difficult to introduce them to playing or watching football. A club like Cheltenham can be a hub and the centre of a lot of activity. Even some of the toughest children have enthusiasm and a willingness to learn if they are set the right examples"

The programmes will cover five areas. Grassroots sport, local club development, health, social inclusion and education.

Community Development Manager Simon Perruzza said: "At a time when there is a much-publicised problem with childhood obesity and other health issues, we aim to use our profile as a professional club to show children the importance of regular exercise and a healthy diet."

Rudge, 62 is still full of running

Life begins at 62...if you are John Rudge.

The most famous flat-cap in the Potteries will still be seen for some time yet after Rudgey agreed a contract for life with Stoke.

Rudge has been Director of Football at the Britannia Stadium since the summer of 1999 - having previously spent 16 years as manager of neighbours Port Vale.

He has the blessing of manager Tony Pulis to continue his work in all aspects of club business from scouting to negotiating with agents.

Pulis said: "I'm very pleased John is staying with us because he still has plenty to offer with his experience in the game.

"His knowledge, judgement and contacts make him so valuable. He's just moved into my office. The only problem is I'm not sure if I'm supposed to be keeping an eye on him or he's keeping an eye on me!"

Rudge became manager of Vale in 1983 and in his 16-year reign he clocked up 843 matches, including three Wembley visits, as he took the club from the lowest tier to what is now the Coca-Cola Championship.

When Rudge left Vale in 1999 the club's fans gave him a unique send-off.

He recalled: "They organised a tremendous reception for me, followed by a march from the town centre where they all donned flat caps as a tribute."

Rudge joined Stoke five months later, but insisted: "I didn't intend any revenge on Vale by joining their local rivals. It was just the convenience of the area.

"I will always regard it as my home now after coming here in 1979."

WALL GAME: Colchester's Duguid is a big fan of Wickes' new half-time challenge

Karl...what a real brick

Karl Duguid is so impressed by Colchester's new half-time entertainment that he fancies having a go himself.

The U's have introduced the Wickes Wall of Fame to their match day schedule - giving fans the opportunity to win a new kitchen.

Two supporters will be chosen to try their luck at the game during the interval of each home game at Layer Road until the end of the season.

The object is to chip the ball over the wall into the goal, with the five highest scorers over the campaign qualifying for a final day play-off.

Midfielder Duguid had a go for himself ahead of the launch and said: "If you get to win a kitchen, I might ask the gaffer if I can pop out and have a go myself one half-time!"

The Wall of Fame was tested out for the first time when Colchester met Barnsley.

Wickes Sponsorship Manager Matt Holmes said: "We may even find Colchester United a new free-kick specialist to rival Teddy Sheringham!"

Dave's a handy student

Every child dreams of becoming a footballer, but it seems footballers are now dreaming of becoming physiotherapists.

Bury's Dave Challinor is putting his plans in place for life after professional sport by embarking on a degree course.

The 32-year-old defender has started a four-year BSC Honours course at Salford University. Team-mate Paul Morgan and Accrington's Andy Procter are in the same year group.

Challinor said: "Now I've got the time to kick on with it and it's something that I'm interested in doing when I finish. It's hard getting back into it but if you organise your time it's very enjoyable."
